My grandfather taught me how to shoot, back in the early '60s, when I was a teenager. He was an avid outdoors man. Sometimes he would give me a case of ammo and a rifle and send me outside to play. My goodness, what a different place the world was then. When I was visiting during inclement weather, he would set up an indoor shooting range and get out the Daisy Model 25. I was so impressed with the power and accuracy of the Model 25.

I credit my Grandfather with my lifelong interest in airgunning. I was so thrilled to see the Model 25 back in production, and being made just the way my Grandfather's was. When my wife asked what I wanted for my 59th birthday last month, I didn't hesitate for a second. Off we went to Dick's Sporting Goods. I don't know what became of my Grandfather's Model 25, but I will be passing mine along to my grandchildren, after sharing many hours of fun shooting with them. Thank you, Daisy.
